WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—The supreme court agreed today to review the contempt convictions of the United Mine Workers union and John L. Lewis for which they were fined $3,500,000 and $10,000 respectively. The high court set Jan. 14 as the day for argument on the case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—The nation's soft coal mines resumed production today as John L. Lewis and the government placed their legal battle in the hands of the U. S. supreme court.

There was no doubt that the high tribunal would assume jurisdiction in the contempt conviction against Lewis which resulted from the 17-day walkout of his 400,000 miners.

There was growing belief in legal circles that the supreme court ultimately may castigate the UMW president for the mine shutdown but set aside the judgment of the lower court.

The high court's decision will establish whether Lewis will have to pay a $10,000 personal fine and the UMW $3,500,000 fine for refusing to halt the walkout in accordance with a district court restraining order.

Lewis' action Saturday calling off the walkout resulted in quick revocation of government orders designed to prepare the country for a fuel famine. These included a freight embargo, a lighting "brownout," and parcel post restrictions.

New Order Issued

The solid fuels administration relaxed emergency controls on soft coal stocks but issued an interim order to provide necessary supplies for essential users and to effect an orderly flow of coal until production catches up with demand.

The new order limits deliveries on the basis of consumers' supplies. It gives preference to utilities, railroads, hospitals, food processing plants, laundries, hotels and households.

Coal Production Down

A solid fuels report said soft coal production during the week ending Nov. 30, first full week of the walkout, totaled an estimated 2,050,000 tons, compared with 6,470,000 tons mined in the preceding week.

WARM WEATHER TO STAY UNTIL TUESDAY NIGHT

By International News Service

Record high temperatures for a winter season were being recorded all over Ohio today as the weather bureau forecast continued warm and mild conditions through tomorrow.

Balmy Sunday weather yesterday carried the mercury to as high as 65 degrees at Cincinnati and Chesapeake and even higher readings were expected for today. Forecasters said that an overcast would develop into showers in the west and north portions of the state by tomorrow afternoon and that cooler weather was expected to set in by tomorrow night.

High and low temperatures at various points for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today were:

Akron 60-47; Archbold 61-49; Cherry Fork 62-40; Chesapeake 65-33; Cincinnati 65-42; Cleveland 61-51; Columbus 62-44; Dayton 60-46; East Liverpool 60-43; Findlay 62-51; Hayesville 60-48; Parkersburg, W. Va., 62-46; Perry 60-53; Port Clinton 60-50; Toledo 60-51; Wilmington 62-45; Youngstown 56-47, and Zanesville 61-42.

NEWARK, O., Dec. 9—William McElroy, sheriff of Licking county for eight years, resigned his post today because he was refused a leave of absence to serve as executive secretary of the Ohio sheriffs' association.

U.S. Will Not Finance Foreign Armies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—The United States today was irrevocably committed to a policy of not financing the armament of European nations or aiding their socialization programs through paying for relief that could be met at home.

The policy was enunciated by acting secretary of state Dean Acheson in a radio address Sunday. It answered in categorical terms the repeated accusations of Russia and her satellite states as well as political elements in the U. S. that this country is playing politics with relief.

A storm of criticism from these quarters was anticipated as the full implications of Acheson's speech became apparent. Some of the loudest was expected to be let off against the sounding board of the UNRRA council which meets in Washington tomorrow.

However, these protests were not expected to carry much weight since the two other main supplier nations—Britain and Canada—have agreed to go along with the United States relief program.

Acheson centered a part of his attack on the weakness of UNRRA's functioning, though he loudly praised the net results of its work. He said that one weakness was that relief was allocated by a nine-power central committee, on which the contributors of 95 percent of UNRRA's funds had but three votes. Acheson declared: "Some nations got relief whose needs were not sufficiently critical to warrant it."

By implication Acheson also indicated that other states close to Russia, such as the Soviet Ukraine and Byelorussia, Poland and Yugoslavia, were unlikely to be eligible for U. S. direct relief.

He did so by setting down a three point program for estimating eligibility for U. S. aid. The conditions were:

1. No country should receive relief unless it has adopted all "reasonable" measures to help itself.

2. Any country which maintains a large army, thus wasting manpower, should receive no relief as gifts.

3. Nations which are devoting the heavy industry capacity which might be used for the manufacture of tractors and agricultural equipment to the manufacture of war equipment can hardly expect aid.

Noting that, through international lending agencies, there are about $30,000,000,000 available for reconstruction loans, Acheson made clear that the administration will ask a substantial sum for relief at the next congress. But he proposed a program which would bar any other nation from saying how the aid shall be divided.

This program provides that each country wishing to assist in a relief program consult with others so inclined. Secretary General of the U. N., Trygve Lie, would serve as a clearing house for these plans.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9—Industry headed back to normal production today with the return to work of virtually all the nation's soft coal miners.

Early reports indicated only two large mines in western Pennsylvania failed to resume operations. Miners at the Pittsburgh-Consolidation mine at Liberty and diggers at the Castle Shannon company's Mountour pit at Coverdale, Pa., refused to return underground.

Absenteeism was reported light. United Mine Workers district five president John P. Busarello said full-scale mining could be expected on the afternoon shift. He added:

"The miners are plenty sore over the raw deal we got from the government, but they are going back because John L. Lewis requested it."

Most of the district presidents received letters today officially notifying them that the strike had been called off.

Children Cheerful

Meanwhile, miners and their families were cheerful over the back-to-work order... especially the children, because the strike threatened to change the Christmas holidays into a day of sadness.

The miners had little to say about the end of the crippling walkout, which had industry virtually at a standstill. Those that did talk had varied opinions. A young miner at the Frick pit at Bridgeville bemoaned:

"I lost $200 in wages during the strike. Now I'll have to start pinching pennies for the one that'll come in March. Why don't they settle it once and for all?"

Resent Fines

Mike Hanus, a loader in a mine at Warwick, Pa., said he was tickled because the strike was over, adding: "I don't think the miners should pay the fine. I don't think we should go back to work until we're told we don't have to pay it."

As the miners were all set to go back to work, thousands of workers furloughed by the mine

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—A score of top-flight union and management representatives in the utility industry met at the call of the government today to seek a program that will assure industrial peace in this vital field of the nation's economic life.

Cancellation Director Edgar L. Warren, who summoned the conference, told the delegates that there is "a general public demand" for both employers and unions in the utility field to give "greater evidence" that they are doing everything possible "to assure the community of continuous production."

The one-day meeting is expected to draft recommendations on the problem of maintaining industrial harmony in transit, communications and other public utilities.

Warren told the meeting that in the first year after V-J day there were 47 strikes involving more than 300,000 employees in utility industries.

FIREMEN CALLED AGAIN TO JONES RESIDENCE

Firemen were summoned at 4:35 p. m. Sunday to the home of the late Dr. Howard Jones, in Park Place, which was the scene of a disastrous fire Dec. 2 in which the damage was estimated at $15,000 to $20,000.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said that Sunday afternoon a mattress on the third floor was discovered smoldering. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Condition of Mrs. Eloise Cassill, 28, Route 1, Circleville, who was injured when the automobile operated by her husband, Harlan Cassill, a farmer, was in collision in the 900 block of South Court street with a car driven by Alonzo H. Lagore, 60, miller, 1014 South Court street, was reported "good" Monday at Berger hospital.

The accident occurred about 7 p. m. Saturday and Mrs. Cassill was removed to the hospital in Defenbaugh's ambulance. Patrolman George Green arrested Lagore on a charge of reckless driving. Lagore was released to appear at 7:30 p. m. Monday before Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

Big 4 Set For Test Of Strength On Treaties

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—A preliminary test of strength between Russia and the western powers on prospects for an early peace treaty with Germany and Austria is expected to develop today when the council of foreign ministers reconvenes.

Soviet Foreign Secretary Molotov appears to be determined to restrict discussions on Germany at this time to a limited exploratory stage, against the insistence of Secretary of State Byrnes and the British and French delegates that the organizational and procedural framework for the European conference be worked out this week.

The big four is racing against time, and may increase its sittings

INDIANS TAKE STEPS
TOWARD INDEPENDENCE

NEW DELHI, Dec. 9—India took a major step toward independence today with the convening of the constitutional assembly but a Moslem boycott balked the unity envisioned by its British sponsors.

Many in the Hindu-dominated assembly hoped that Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem league, would undergo a change of heart before the assembly reaches its essential talks some days hence.

Other frequent accidents which the council's annual report headlined were:

"Dog shoots woman."

"Shot at sparrow causes $50,000 explosion."

"Rabbit shoots hunter."

"Ice cube knocks out girl."

"Dead goose hospitalizes veteran hunter."

James Mantakes, of La Grande, Ore., was the victim of the sneezing salmon. Shortly after he caught it and tossed it in the rear of his car, he headed home.

Dust got in the fish's gills and it sneezed.

Mantakes glanced back, just as $20, to finish off the five satellite treaties and the preliminary arrangements on Germany as well. It is reported that British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Molotov have joined a request for many UN delegates that the sailing of the liner Queen Elizabeth be postponed from next Saturday to Sunday to enable them an extra day of conferences here.

The ministers face their first deadlock over Germany when they gather at 4 o'clock this afternoon, with Byrnes flatly against being drawn into the next meeting of the council unless an agenda dealing immediately with concrete German peace problems such as settlement of the western frontier can be agreed upon.

Molotov has submitted a proposal significantly devoid of any suggestions other than the outline for a council meeting in February—if possible in Moscow—to discuss the ways and means of

MADRID, Dec. 9—Generalissimo Francisco Franco today defied the United Nations to deprive his followers of the fruits of their victory in the Spanish civil war.

Addressing a crowd of thousands of demonstrators from a balcony of the Oriente palace in Madrid, the Spanish leader whom the United Nations is trying to unseat asserted:

"People from the outside have no right to intervene in the private affairs of nations."

"They want to take from the Spaniards the glory of their victory, but, just as other nations want to administer their peace, so we will administer our victory."

Blasts Communism

El Caudillo, who said he was "not surprised" at the UN campaign particularly as "Communism is desolating Europe," added:

"It would be folly to expect the winners of the civil war to hand over power to the losers."

Franco declared that the vast crowd gathered before him in the plaza constituted the plain answer to those attempting to interfere in Spanish affairs, and added:

"Spain's pacific spirit has been sufficiently demonstrated, but if our liberties are in danger we would resist."

Franco's speech was a highlight in a nationwide demonstration, officially sanctioned and apparently

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9—State Conservation Commissioner H. A. Rider petitioned President Truman today for allocation of "at least five million dollars" in federal funds to the states for wildlife restoration.

Delegates
Get Nowhere
At UN Meet

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—The United Nations got exactly nowhere today on such major world problems as a census of armed forces "at home and abroad."

Great Britain challenged every state to produce figures as of December 31, 1946.

Soviet Russia's chief spokesman, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, ignored this challenge in the course of a 4 p. m. to 1 a. m. session of the UN general assembly.

Rather, said Molotov, the question of home forces had been brought into the picture to distract attention from the number of allied forces still in small countries long since the war ended.

Earlier in the evening, the plenary session of the general assembly had resolved a question of racial discrimination.

By a vote of 32 to 15, with 7 abstentions, a French-Mexican resolution was adopted calling on India and South Africa to settle their dispute.

India had charged that her nationals were being mistreated in South Africa.

SOLONS TO WORK
ON LABOR LAWSTaft Says Congress Will Not Have To Wait For Court Decision On Lewis

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—Sen. Robert (R) Taft, Ohio, declared today that congress would not have to await supreme court settlement of the legal issues in the soft coal case before acting on new labor legislation.

Taft, who returned to capitol hill this morning from a two-weeks' Central-American vacation, said the first problems before the 80th congress will be labor legislation, a new federal budget and termination of wartime controls.

Taft said reduction of taxes would not receive senate action until the new joint budget committee had surveyed the overall federal expenditures picture. The congressional reorganization act requires that this be done by Feb. 15.

Asked if congress would not have to defer action on labor legislation until the supreme court has rendered a decision in the Lewis case, Taft replied:

"I don't think so. They are two different things. It's up to the supreme court to say what the law is, but it's up to congress to say what the law should be."

Taft, chairman of the senate GOP steering committee, told reporters that Republican committee assignments for the new congress will be decided finally by the new committee on committees.

The present committee on committees of the 79th congress, of which Taft is a member, meets this afternoon.

Big 4 Set For Test Of Strength On Treaties

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A preliminary test of strength between Russia and the western powers on prospects for an early peace treaty with Germany and Austria is expected to develop today when the council of foreign ministers reconvenes.

Soviet Foreign Secretary Molotov appears to be determined to restrict discussions on Germany at this time to a limited exploratory stage, against the insistence of Secretary of State Byrnes and the British and French delegates that the organizational and procedural framework for the European conference be worked out this week.

The big four is racing against time, and may increase its sittings to finish off the five satellite treaties and the preliminary arrangements on Germany as well. It is reported that British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Molotov have joined a request for many UN delegates that the sailing of the liner Queen Elizabeth be postponed from next Saturday to Sunday to enable them an extra day of conferences here.

The ministers face their first deadlock over Germany when they gather at 4 o'clock this afternoon, with Byrnes flatly against being drawn into the next meeting of the council unless an agenda dealing immediately with concrete German peace problems such as settlement of the western frontier can be agreed upon.

Molotov has submitted a proposal significantly devoid of any suggestions other than the outline for a council meeting in February—if possible in Moscow—to discuss the ways and means of (Continued on Page Two)

HUSBAND FACES CHARGES

ATHENS, O., Dec. 9.—Athens county prosecutor Gordon Gray announced today that first degree murder charges would be filed against Jewell Peters, 25, Ohio University war veteran student, whose wife, Leah May, was found dead in their trailer home last Wednesday.

The salmon snapped at a grasshopper. It missed the grasshopper and landed in Mantakes' lap.

Unnerved, Mantakes lost control of his car.

The car plunged off the road for the top freak accident of the year.

In Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Ruth Patterson was bathing when her puppy dog, pawing the trigger of a nearby gun, shot her.

In Plymouth, Wis., 16-year-old Robert Marth shot at a sparrow perched on a wagon.

Marth missed the bird but hit its wagon perch, setting off 1,300 pounds of dynamite.

The damage caused by the blast which shattered hundreds of windows in the area and disrupted power service, was $50,000.

Marth later was fined a total of $25.

FRANCO DEFIES UN ACTION IN MADRID SPEECH

Spain Stages Demonstration Against Interference In Franco Government

MADRID, Dec. 9.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco today defied the United Nations to deprive his followers of the fruits of their victory in the Spanish civil war.

Addressing a crowd of thousands of demonstrators from a balcony of the Oriente palace in Madrid, the Spanish leader whom the United Nations is trying to unseat asserted:

"People from the outside have no right to intervene in the private affairs of nations."

"They want to take from the Spaniards the glory of their victory, but just as other nations want to administer their peace, so we will administer our victory."

Blasts Communism
El Caudillo, who said he was "not surprised" at the UN campaign particularly as "Communism is desolating Europe," added:

"It would be folly to expect the winners of the civil war to hand over power to the losers."

Franco declared that the vast crowd gathered before him in the plaza constituted the plain answer to those attempting to interfere in Spanish affairs, and added:

"Spain's pacific spirit has been sufficiently demonstrated, but if our liberties are in danger we would resist."

Franco's speech was a highlight in a nationwide demonstration, officially sanctioned and apparently (Continued on Page Two)

RIDER REQUESTS MORE FUNDS FOR WILDLIFE HELP

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—State Conservation Commissioner H. A. Rider petitioned President Truman today for allocation of "at least five million dollars" in federal funds to the states for wildlife restoration.

In a letter to the President, Interior Secretary Krug and Ohio congressman, Rider complained that Krug had requested only two and a half million dollars for the restoration program.

Under terms of the Pittman-Robinson act, all federal excise taxes collected on sales of guns and ammunition are earmarked to be returned to the state for fish and game propagation. Approximately five million dollars was collected in this manner last year. Rider said that over a period of years, a trust fund of 15 millions had accumulated.

Other freak accidents which the council's annual report headlined were:

"Dog shoots woman."

"Shot at sparrow causes $50,000 explosion."

"Ice cube knocks out girl."

The accident occurred about 7 p. m. Saturday and Mrs. Cassill was removed to the hospital in Defenbaugh's ambulance. Patrolman George Green arrested Lagore on a charge of reckless driving. Lagore was released to appear at 7:30 p. m. Monday before Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

SUPREME COURT TAKES UP CASE AGAINST LEWIS

Heavy Fines Against Union And Chief May Be Set Aside

(Continued from Page One) ing week during part of which the stoppage was in progress. Some 12,640,000 tons were dug in the week ending Nov. 16.

Lewis ordered the miners back to work until March 31, 1947, so as not to embarrass the supreme court during its consideration of the coal case, he explained. A high court decision may take a month or more.

Soft coal operators showed no signs of initiating contract negotiations with Lewis looking toward an agreement which would permit release of their mines from federal control.

The operators appeared likely to sit back and await the outcome of the supreme court appeal. They also may want to await a ruling by Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough on the government's complaint for a declaratory judgment.

The government seeks a declaration from Goldsborough that Lewis is not a legal right to terminate the government-union contract. Union attorneys have filed a motion to dismiss this complaint. If Judge Goldsborough denies this motion, the case will be set for trial.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—A Cleveland industrial consultant, Robert Heller, headed a group of business, labor, professional and agricultural leaders today in a national committee on strengthening congress.

The organization, which will keep its headquarters in Washington, will seek to have the new congress put into effect changes recommended for streamlining the national law-making body.

Heller, one of 35 members of the committee, was instrumental in securing passage of the legislative reorganization act by the last congress.

Another prominent Cleveland leader in the group is N. R. Howard, editor of the Cleveland News. Other members include Publisher John S. Knight; Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric company; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam; and Robert J. Watt, international representative of the American Federation of Labor.

ZIONISTS TO DISCUSS PARTITION OF PALESTINE

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 9.—A major battle over the British proposal for partition of Palestine took shape today among more than 2,000 delegates at the opening session of the world Zionist congress. Opponents of partition looked to Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Cleveland rabbi, for leadership in the vital political deliberations expected to continue for two weeks.

The followers of Dr. Silver, who reaffirmed his stand in a pre-conference address to the world confederation of general Zionists, are expected to insist on an independent Jewish state comprising all of Palestine.

(Continued from Page One) drafting a treaty with Germany and Austria. He must therefore take account today of a three-point plan placed before the council by Byrnes and calling specifically for the following:

1. The immediate appointment of special deputies to do the spadework for a peace treaty with Germany, particularly to give a hearing to the various small countries who have asked to participate in the making of such a pact. Also that the allied control council in Germany be instructed to prepare a report covering the problems of setting up a central German government.

2. The appointment of special deputies to study the question of a treaty with Austria and to submit a draft treaty covering all issues and applicable to the provisions of the Balkan treaties now nearing completion.

3. The limitation of occupational troops by reducing their numbers in Germany, Poland, Austria, Hungary and Romania to 620,000 men by April 1, 1947, with 240,000 of them Russians. A second cut to go into effect by April 1, 1948 would proportionally reduce all occupational forces by 25 per cent to 33 1/3 per cent.

MORE ACTION IN ROBBERY PROBE IS ANTICIPATED

Further developments in the roundup of a gang of alleged gunmen-burglars charged with the American Legion burglary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars robbery, and other burglaries and the thefts not only in Circleville but over a wide area, were hinted Monday.

Howard G. Robinson, Newark private detective, who directed the four-week investigation resulting in the filing of formal charges, Friday, against Orin Diltz, 24, and George Clifton, 25, both of Route 4, Circleville, returned early Monday from upper Michigan. Robinson, accompanied by Police Chief William F. McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff, made a two-day investigation of certain aspects of the gang's activities in Michigan.

Diltz and Clifton were under heavy guard Monday in the Pickaway county jail where they were being held in default of bonds totaling $25,000 each. The two men pleaded innocent before Mayor Ben H. Gordon, late last week, of five separate charges.

It was reported Monday that steps were being taken by relatives to post the $25,000 bond for the release of Clifton. However it was stated by Sheriff Charles Radcliff that in event that move is made Clifton will undoubtedly be immediately re-arrested on a warrant charging him with participation in the July 5 burglary of the Barber garage and filling station at Nelsonville in Athens county.

BUC FILES CONTEMPT CHARGE IN COURT HERE

Contempt charge was filed against R. H. Smith, Route 5, Circleville, a contractor, Monday in Pickaway common pleas court, by John M. Woy, Columbus, deputy administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

The application says that on Sept. 30 a subpoena ordered Smith to appear Oct. 15 before B. H. Wolf, an authorized representative of the BUC in the court-house, Circleville, to testify and to give evidence in a certain hearing and to bring with him all payroll and other records to determine Smith's liability under the unemployment compensation law.

His failure to appear, the application says, constituted a violation of Sec. 1345-24 of the Ohio general code and Woy asks that Smith be directed to appear before the court to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt.

The blasts startled Shanghai residents in mid-afternoon tasks Saturday and continued through the night, lighting the skies with flames reminiscent of air raids—familiar to the metropolis in wartime. The explosions continued sporadically through Sunday.

Nearest American to the blast center were Army, Navy and Marine corps personnel stationed at the Kiangwan airport, four miles away. Windows in barracks were shattered but no personnel were reported injured.

Delegates Get Nowhere At UN Meet

Sir Hartley asked the United Nations to "inspect and verify" the number of his nation's troops in foreign countries as of the year's end.

It was a Soviet proposal which first brought up the idea of a troop census.

"Acceptance of the proposition will show the world we are sincere," Sir Hartley said.

Molotov told the assembly that the presence of foreign troops "is exercising inadmissible pressure on internal affairs."

It appeared he was referring to British troops in Greece and Egypt, and American troops in China.

GEORGIA MOURNS DEATHS OF 28 YOUTH LEADERS

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 9.—High schools were closed and churches filled in Georgia towns today as stricken communities prepared to bury the 28 boys and girls—members of the Y. M. C. A. youth assembly who died Saturday in the Wincoff hotel fire.

These young people were chosen by their townspeople as the "cream of the crop," the finest representatives of scholarship, character and interest in their communities.

Of the 47 youngsters registered at the Wincoff, only 17 escaped from the flames that swept the "fireproof" hostelry.

Four girls, delegates from Gainesville, still were among the missing today as parents, sisters and brothers walked silently through the city's mortuaries and hospital corridors searching for their loved ones.

Another four youths were in Atlanta hospitals suffering from injuries.

Bainbridge mourned the loss of seven youngsters who were presidents of every youth organization in the city. Double funeral rites were scheduled for tomorrow for two school chums who died together.

ZIONISTS TO DISCUSS PARTITION OF PALESTINE

BASLE, Switzerland, Dec. 9.—A major battle over the British proposal for partition of Palestine took shape today among more than 2,000 delegates at the opening session of the world Zionist congress.

Opponents of partition looked to Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Cleveland rabbi, for leadership in the vital political deliberations expected to continue for two weeks.

The followers of Dr. Silver, who reaffirmed his stand in a pre-conference address to the world confederation of general Zionists, are expected to insist on an independent Jewish state comprising all of Palestine.

Big 4 Set For Test Of Strength On Treaties

drafting a treaty with Germany and Austria. He must therefore take account today of a three-point plan placed before the council by Byrnes and calling specifically for the following:

1. The immediate appointment of special deputies to do the spadework for a peace treaty with Germany, particularly to give a hearing to the various small countries who have asked to participate in the making of such a pact. Also that the allied control council in Germany be instructed to prepare a report covering the problems of setting up a central German government.

2. The appointment of special deputies to study the question of a treaty with Austria and to submit a draft treaty covering all issues and applicable to the provisions of the Balkan treaties now nearing completion.

3. The limitation of occupational troops by reducing their numbers in Germany, Poland, Austria, Hungary and Romania to 620,000 men by April 1, 1947, with 240,000 of them Russians. A second cut to go into effect by April 1, 1948 would proportionally reduce all occupational forces by 25 per cent to 33 1/2 per cent.

Further developments in the roundup of a gang of alleged gunmen-burglars charged with the American Legion burglary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars robbery, and other burglaries and the thefts not only in Circleville but over a wide area, were hinted Monday.

Howard G. Robinson, Newark private detective, who directed the four-week investigation resulting in the filing of formal charges, Friday, against Orin Diltz, 24, and George Clifton, 25, both of Route 4, Circleville, returned early Monday from upper Michigan. Robinson, accompanied by Police Chief William F. McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff, made a two-day investigation of certain aspects of the gang's activities in Michigan.

Diltz and Clifton were under heavy guard Monday in the Pickaway county jail where they were being held in default of bonds totaling $25,000 each. The two men pleaded innocent before Mayor Ben H. Gordon, late last week, to five separate charges.

It was reported Monday that steps were being taken by relatives to post the $25,000 bond for the release of Clifton. However it was stated by Sheriff Charles Radcliff that in event that move is made Clifton will undoubtedly be immediately re-arrested on a warrant charging him with participation in the July 5 burglary of the Barber garage and filling station at Nelsonville in Athens county.

Contempt charge was filed against R. H. Smith, Route 5, Circleville, a contractor, Monday in Pickaway common pleas court, by John M. Woy, Columbus, deputy administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

The application says that on Sept. 30 a subpoena ordered Smith to appear Oct. 15 before B. H. Wolf, an authorized representative of the BUC in the court-house, Circleville, to testify and to give evidence in a certain hearing and to bring with him all payroll and other records to determine Smith's liability under the unemployment compensation law.

His failure to appear, the application says, constituted a violation of Sec. 1345-24 of the Ohio general code and Woy asks that Smith be directed to appear before the court to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt.

shutdown and the embargo on rail shipping, were recalled. Factories, steel mills and fabricating plants, caught off balance by the sudden ending of the strike and scrapping of the embargo, hurriedly rearranged production schedules.

Many of the steel mills across the nation will return to normal operations immediately. Others expect to make a gradual return and reach their peak within two weeks.

More Than 100 Believed Dead In Explosions

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9.—Some specific word on the number of casualties in the thunderous explosions which rocked Shanghai over the weekend was expected today.

Estimates place the number of dead at well over 100 but the danger from continuing explosions of bombs and shells prevented an accurate tally. Property damage estimates ran well into the millions.

Chinese authorities said that 20,000 shells and bombs were stored at the Kiangwan housing and recreation area where the blast took place only eight miles from the heart of Shanghai, China's largest city.

An entire company of Chinese government soldiers was believed to have perished when the earth-shaking and spectacular detonations got their start. No Americans or other than Chinese were believed victims of the mass disaster.

The blasts startled Shanghai residents in mid-afternoon tasks Saturday and continued through the night, lighting the skies with flames reminiscent of air raids—familiar to the metropolis in wartime. The explosions continued sporadically through Sunday.

Nearest American to the blast center were Army, Navy and Marine corps personnel stationed at the Kiangwan airport, four miles away. Windows in barracks were shattered but no personnel were reported injured.

Nazi Doctors Deny Guilt In Mass Murders

NUERNBERG, Dec. 9.—Twenty-three Nazi doctors and scientists came to attention before a three-man American tribunal today and pleaded not guilty to charges of murdering thousands of concentration camp victims in medical experiments.

The defendants stood in the same dock where Herman Goering and other leading Nazi war criminals were sentenced to death.

As emotionless as the others at the opening of the little Nuernberg trial was a 35-year-old woman, Dr. Heria Oberhauser, physician in charge at the Ravensbrueck concentration camp for women. Charges against her include that of sterilization.

Brig. General Telford Taylor, chief American prosecutor, opened the trial with a 61-page statement calling for clear recognition of the atrocities committed in the Nazi camps.

WEST ALLIS, Wis., Dec. 9.—A mass demonstration of 10,000 persons before the strikebound Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company's plant at West Allis was planned today by officials of 21 CIO-United Automobile Workers locals.

Officials said the demonstration, the third in two weeks, was arranged by telephone with leaders of CIO-UAW locals in Milwaukee and West Allis.

A CIO-UAM spokesman who declined to be named said the demonstration was "to show their backing of the local 248."

Sheriff George Hanley, who led 700 sheriff's deputies and policemen at the most recent demonstration said:

11 PERSONS DIE IN CANADIAN HOTEL TRAGEDY

'Fire Resistant' Hotel Is Guttured By Flames; 19 Seriously Injured

SAKATOON, Sask., Dec. 9.—A casualty toll of 11 dead and 19 injured was counted today following the second disastrous hotel fire in North America within 24 hours. The fire raged through the Barry hotel in Saskatoon early yesterday after a gasoline can exploded in the rotunda of the three-story brick and concrete building.

Ten of the 11 dead had been identified last night. One was a woman.

In some respects the fire resembled that which cost the lives of 116 persons at the Wincoff hotel in Atlanta, Ga., early Saturday.

Like the Atlanta holocaust, the Barry hotel blaze spread so quickly that guests were trapped in their rooms or in corridors by which they sought exit.

Many of the 120 guests jumped from windows or were assisted down fire ladders. Most of the dead were found in rooms and halls, the bodies of some charred beyond recognition.

Chief Constable Albert Milne said the gasoline can first burst into flames while a heating stove fire was being rekindled in a cafe in the hotel building. It exploded while an employee was carrying it out of the cafe.

Saskatoon's fire department of 59 men fought the blaze in 10 above zero weather for two hours before it was brought under control.

Fire Marshal Albert Higgin ordered his men to concentrate their efforts on rescuing trapped guests, and said that many persons were saved by the use of ladders.

The marshal described the Barry hotel as a "fire resistant" structure, the same classification that had been given to the Wincoff hotel in Atlanta.

The 86-room Barry hotel was built in 1912. Only the brick walls and concrete floors remained after the fire was extinguished.

The building was located in the center of the business district of this city of 45,000 population.

Soil Conservation Notes

By J. A. Muster

Joseph Blaha, an experienced soil conservation service engineer has been appointed district engineer for Delaware, Franklin, Madison and Pickaway counties, effective Dec. 9. The services of Mr. Blaha will be divided between the four counties named, which represent a district. Special engineering problems which arise in connection with conservation farm planning will be those of the engineer; problems which call for more engineering skill than most farm planners possess.

Last week stream bank cutting, caused by meandering courses of Scioto creek, was studied on the farms of A. A. White, E. R. May and S. C. Elsea. Plans for the control of the existing problems are to be prepared for the farm owners. Practical and relatively inexpensive recommendations will be made. Later on, special drainage problems which may require the cooperation of farm owners concerned, are expected to develop.

A soil improvement farm plan was completed last week for the W. C. and James W. Moody farm in north Madison township. The adoption of greater use of pastures and hay crops, the use of two rotations because of the layout of this farm, the building of a farm pond for livestock watering and the planting of a small number of trees for wildlife cover are some of the main points covered in the new farm plan.

Sam C. Elsea filed an application last week for a conservation farm plan covering the 93 acres Mr. Elsea recently acquired on the Kingston road about three miles southeast of Circleville.

C. E. Zwayer is filing an application for a new farm plan to cover his 183 acre farm in north Madison township.

Applications for farm plans are accumulating in the office of the Pickaway district and, with the shorter days and bad weather upon us, as rapid coverage by the conservationist as was made during the more favorable seasons of the year, is impossible. As rapid progress as circumstances permit, is being made however and no one who has filed for service will be overlooked.

4 HANDS FOUND BY TEEN-AGERS

Police Investigating Horror Mystery Disclosed By Pennsylvania Girl

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9 — Allegheny county police today were confronted with a "stranger than fiction" horror mystery, following the discovery of four human hands along a roadside in Ohio township, near Pittsburgh.

Police said 13-year-old Joanne Ward, and three companions, made the discovery on a Sunday morning walk when the girl's small dog dragged a package from the underbrush.

Police Chief Conrad Becker, of Kilbuck township, said the children took the package to Ralph Keller, father of one of the youngsters, after the dog tugged at the package binding and a hand fell out.

County Detective Sam Graham said the hands were paired and apparently those of two men. He reported that they were in a bag wrapped in a newspaper, dated April 12, 1946, and bound with friction tape.

Graham added that a search of the area where the hands were found disclosed nothing.

11 PERSONS DIE IN CANADIAN HOTEL TRAGEDY

"Fire Resistant" Hotel Is
Gutted By Flames; 19
Seriously Injured

SAKATOON, Sask., Dec. 9.—A casualty toll of 11 dead and 19 injured was counted today following the second disastrous hotel fire in North America within 24 hours.

The fire raged through the Barry hotel in Saskatoon early yesterday after a gasoline can exploded in the rotunda of the three-story brick and concrete building.

Ten of the 11 dead had been identified last night. One was a woman.

In some respects the fire resembled that which cost the lives of 116 persons at the Winecoff hotel in Atlanta, Ga., early Saturday.

Like the Atlanta holocaust, the Barry hotel blaze spread so quickly that guests were trapped in their rooms or in corridors by which they sought exit.

Many of the 120 guests jumped from windows or were assisted down fire ladders. Most of the dead were found in rooms and halls, the bodies of some charred beyond recognition.

Chief Constable Albert Milne said the gasoline can first burst into flames while a heating stove fire was being kindled in a cafe in the hotel building. It exploded while an employee was carrying it out of the cafe.

Saskatoon's fire department of 59 men fought the blaze in 10 above zero weather for two hours before it was brought under control.

Fire Marshal Albert Higgin ordered his men to concentrate their efforts on rescuing trapped guests, and said that many persons were saved by the use of ladders.

The marshal described the Barry hotel as a "fire resistant" structure, the same classification that had been given to the Winecoff hotel in Atlanta.

The 56-room Barry hotel was built in 1912. Only the brick walls and concrete floors remained after the fire was extinguished.

The building was located in the center of the business district of this city of 45,000 population.

Included among the conference speakers are: Charles Stewart, U. S. bureau of labor statistics program planning chief; William F. Soil Conservation Notes

By J. A. Muster

Joseph Blaha, an experienced soil conservation service engineer has been appointed district engineer for Delaware, Franklin, Madison and Pickaway counties, effective Dec. 9. The services of Mr. Blaha will be divided between the four counties named, which represent a district. Special engineering problems which arise in connection with conservation farm planning will be those of the engineer; problems which call for more engineering skill than most farm planners possess.

Last week stream bank cutting, caused by meandering courses of Scioto creek, was studied on the farms of A. A. White, E. R. May and S. C. Elsea. Plans for the control of the existing problems are to be prepared for the farm owners. Practical and relatively inexpensive recommendations will be made. Later on, special drainage problems which may require the cooperation of farm owners concerned, are expected to develop.

A soil improvement farm plan was completed last week for the W. C. and James W. Moody farm in north Madison township. The adoption of greater use of pastures and hay crops, the use of two rotations because of the layout of this farm, the building of a farm pond for livestock watering and the planting of a small number of trees for wildlife cover are some of the main points covered in the new farm plan.

Sam C. Elsea filed an application last week for a conservation farm plan covering the 93 acres Mr. Elsea recently acquired on the Kingston road about three miles southeast of Circleville. C. E. Zwyer is filing an application for a new farm plan to cover his 183 acre farm in north Madison township.

Applications for farm plans are accumulating in the office of the Pickaway district and, with the shorter days and bad weather upon us, as rapid coverage by the conservationist as was made during the more favorable seasons of the year, is impossible. As rapid progress as circumstances permit, is being made however and no one who has filed for service will be overlooked.

4 HANDS FOUND BY TEEN-AGERS

Police Investigating Horror
Mystery Disclosed By Pennsylvania Girl

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9.—Allegheny county police today were confronted with a "stranger than fiction" horror mystery, following the discovery of four human hands along a roadside in Ohio township, near Pittsburgh.

Police said 13-year-old Joanne Ward, and three companions, made the discovery on a Sunday morning walk when the girl's small dog dragged a package from the underbrush.

Police Chief Conrad Becker, of Kilbuck township, said the children took the package to Ralph Keller, father of one of the youngsters, after the dog tugged at the package binding and a hand fell out.

County Detective Sam Graham said the hands were paired and apparently those of two men. He reported that they were in a bag wrapped in a newspaper, dated April 12, 1946, and bound with friction tape.

Graham added that a search of the area where the hands were found disclosed nothing.

OPEN STAIRWAY IS BLAMED IN ATLANTA FIRE

111 Bodies Identified So Far In Nation's Worst Hotel Blaze; Probes Open

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 9 — Preliminary investigation of the Wincoff hotel fire in which 116 persons lost their lives indicated today that an open stairway was responsible for the rapid spread of the flames to upper floors of the building early Saturday.

A total of 111 bodies have been definitely identified. Five other persons were unaccounted for and were believed to comprise the unidentified dead.

A. C. Hutson, investigator for the Underwriters' Association of America, operated by insurance companies, said he believed the open stairway "acted just like a chimney" in speeding the progress of the fire.

Hutson inspected the hotel's burned out interior yesterday and said he has been unable thus far to determine the cause of the fire, the worst hotel blaze in the nation's history.

The New York investigator planned to interview hotel employees and guests. He said he may have a statement ready regarding the fire's origin before the Atlanta City council's fire committee holds a special meeting today.

The blaze apparently started near the fourth floor. Eye witnesses said it mushroomed through the 15-story brick structure with almost lightning speed.

Flames shot upward from one floor to another until the upper floors were engulfed.

Few of the 280 guests had time to escape. Most of the survivors were forced to leap into fire nets or await rescue by firemen.

Harry Boyte, Red Cross executive, said it is possible that the five unidentified dead were guests still not accounted for. All were women.

An additional 30 persons remained in Atlanta hospitals. Some are in critical condition and not expected to survive.

More than 40 persons were released from hospitals up to last night.

Meanwhile, state and Fulton county officials indicated they would join in the investigation of the holocaust.

Georgia's Gov. Ellis Arnall said he would order a state probe into the disastrous three-hour conflagration.

The Wincoff, advertised and generally recognized as a "fire resistant building," had no fire escape leading out above the sixth floor.

City building inspector Marshall Phillips made a routine inspection of the structure less than 30 days ago.

Representatives of the hotel management would not hazard a guess as to the over-all damage from the fire.

Atlanta Fire Chief, C. C. Styron said that all available resources had been thrown into the battle.

Detective Supt. E. I. Hilderbrand declared:

"There is no cause at this time to believe the fire was a case of arson."

A. C. Hutson, investigator for the Underwriters' Association of America, operated by insurance companies, said he believed the open stairway "acted just like a chimney" in speeding the progress of the fire.

Hutson inspected the hotel's burned out interior yesterday and said he has been unable thus far to determine the cause of the fire, the worst hotel blaze in the nation's history.

The New York investigator planned to interview hotel employees and guests. He said he may have a statement ready regarding the fire's origin before the Atlanta City council's fire committee holds a special meeting today.

The blaze apparently started near the fourth floor. Eye witnesses said it mushroomed through the 15-story brick structure with almost lightning speed.

Flames shot upward from one floor to another until the upper floors were engulfed.

Few of the 280 guests had time to escape. Most of the survivors were forced to leap into fire nets or await rescue by firemen. Harry Boyte, Red Cross executive, said it is possible that the five unidentified dead were guests still not accounted for. All were women.

An additional 30 persons remained in Atlanta hospitals. Some are in critical condition and not expected to survive.

More than 40 persons were released from hospitals up to last night.

Meanwhile, state and Fulton county officials indicated they would join in the investigation of the holocaust.

Georgia's Gov. Ellis Arnall said he would order a state probe into the disastrous three-hour conflagration.

The Winecoff, advertised and generally recognized as a "fire resistant building," had no fire escape leading out above the sixth floor.

City building inspector Marshall Phillips made a routine inspection of the structure less than 30 days ago.

Representatives of the hotel management would not hazard a guess as to the over-all damage from the fire.

Atlanta Fire Chief, C. C. Styron said that all available resources had been thrown into the battle.

Detective Supt. E. I. Hilderbrand declared:

"There is no cause at this time to believe the fire was a case of arson."

BRITISH PLANES DROP RELIEF TO REFUGEE JEWS

JERUSALEM, Dec. 9—Four British Halifax bombers parachuted food and medical supplies today to 800 illegal Jewish immigrants who waded ashore to tiny Syrina Island when their blockade runner was wrecked on the rocks.

The destroyer Chevron was dispatched from Rhodes, 50 miles away, to the aid of the refugees, reported suffering from exposure and the effects of their drenching.

The Greek government offered to send additional aid to the refugees whose hopes of reaching Palestine were dashed 500 miles short of their goal.

Eight of the passengers were reported to have died when the vessel was wrecked in a Mediterranean storm. The survivors were said to include 250 women and children.

Reports reaching Jerusalem said the illegal immigrants were ill clad and suffering hunger. Their entire food supply was said to have been lost with their ship.

(The London Daily Express reported that a British ferry vessel will remove the immigrants from Syrina directly to the internment camps on Cyprus.)

DENTISTS URGE STATE PROGRAM OF TEETH CARE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9—Recommendations for a five-million-dollar state dental program were left behind today by representatives of state dental societies as they concluded a three-day conference in Columbus.

Dental care for every Ohio child was envisioned by the conference. The plan calls for appropriations from federal, state and community sources totaling approximately five millions.

Immediate goals outlined include: Examination of pre-school and school children's teeth;

Assignment of 370 dentists to restorative work among underprivileged children;

Development of school courses in dental health;

Amendment of state school laws to permit absence from classes for dental treatment;

Additional state health department mobile units and one-half day a month service by each of the state's 3,800 practicing dentists;

Creation of dental scholarships and a student loan fund by the Ohio state dental society and

Formation of a state dental research center.

$100,000 FIRE SWEEPS REFINERY OF OIL COMPANY

COMPTON, Cal., Dec. 9—Firemen today controlled flames that engulfed a large section of the gasoline treatment division at the Shell Oil company's Dominguez refinery.

No estimate of damage could be obtained immediately from company officials, but it was expected to exceed $100,000.

A series of three explosions preceded the flames. Three 25,000-gallon oil storage tanks and one 25,000-gallon chemical tank were destroyed.

L. R. Goldsmith, plant superintendent, refused to estimate the loss and said the cause of the explosions had not been determined. Other reports attributed them to static electricity.

Approximately 100 men working in the fire-swept section of the refinery escaped without injury. Two workmen caught behind a wall of flames raced through a narrow opening just before the exit was sealed off to contain the fire.

GOP EXPECTED TO USE USUAL SENIORITY RULE

Committee On Committees In Session At Washington To Divide Posts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Sen. White (R) Maine, predicted today that the seniority rule would emerge "pretty well intact" as the Republican formula for handing out senate committee assignments in the 80th congress.

The GOP committee on committees, which White heads, was called into its first meeting today to tackle the delicate job of lining up committee posts with the minimum amount of dissatisfaction.

White told International News Service that he believed that after all the talking was over, Republicans would find it difficult to escape the old rule of seniority for "universal application."

"I think it may come out a little scarred and tarnished in spots, but the seniority rule will emerge pretty well intact," he said.

Meanwhile, Sen. Butler (R) Neb., indicated that in the shuffle of committee chairmanships his personal preference will be to head the new committee on public lands, rather than that on finance.

Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) Ohio, is expected to give up his claim on the finance chairmanship to preside over the senate education and labor committee. Butler ranks just below Taft on finance but said he believed that, because of his engineering background and interest in irrigation and reclamation, he might better serve on public lands.

Should White's committee strategists recommend this setup to the Republican conference on Dec. 30, Sen. Millikin (R) Colo., would be in good position to claim the finance chairmanship. Republicans view Millikin as an excellent choice because of his experience and interest in fiscal matters.

UAW MEETS TO PLAN FOR 'SUBSTANTIAL' WAGE HIKE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The executive board of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) opens a week-long meeting in New York today to discuss plans for a "substantial" wage boost demand for its 850,000 members.

The UAW is working in close contact with the United Steel Workers (CIO) so the two drives for higher wages do not come in conflict.

CIO strategy is for the USW to fix the pattern of wage negotiations in the steel industry, with the UAW and other CIO unions closely following their lead.

ITALIAN PREMIER SAYS HE WILL FIGHT INFLATION

MILAN, Dec. 9.—Premier Alcide De Gasperi pledged today to save Italy from "the disaster of inflation" after appealing to the United States not to delay its promised financial assistance.

Speaking in Milan's La Scala opera house, De Gasperi said Italy will require between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000 of financial aid next year and $4,000,000,000 in the following four years.

He forecast drastic measures against speculators whose manipulations have tended to devalue the lira.

At the same time De Gasperi denounced additional reparations levied on Italy by the big four council of foreign ministers meeting in New York.

JACK & HEINTZ DIRECTORS SCRAP WITH PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The board of directors of the Jack & Heintz Precision Industries, Inc., were to consider continuing of Bill Jack as president of the organization at a regular monthly meeting today in New York.

Upon his return from a two-month leave of absence, the famed Cleveland industrialist said he would not step down from head of the organization which he built during the war from practically nothing to a nationally famous organization.

Board Chairman Byron C. Foy issued a statement saying that relationships between Jack and his new partners "have not turned out satisfactorily either to him or to the management" since Jack & Heintz, Inc., and Precision Production Corporation merged last March.

Much of Jack's fame as an industrialist came from his personnel policies and practices, which included granting of bonuses and calling his employees "associates."

Foy said in his statement that the same policies, which helped during the war to increase production and lower costs, still were being followed with certain modifications by the successor company.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Murder charges were slated to be filed today against Morris Catten, 26, Columbus, who allegedly confessed the fatal shooting Saturday afternoon of Jacob Goldsmith, 60, a pawnbroker.

Catten was cornered after a chase by police and was shot in the shoulder when he attempted to escape over a fence. Detectives said Catten confessed the shooting after originally denying it.

FERTILE ALASKA

IT has become a commonplace to speak of Alaska as the last frontier for Americans, and to speak of it as ideal farming country, but most people still need a good deal of selling on the idea.

Herbert Hilscher, writing in the December Rotarian, tells of an interview with George W. Gasser, Commissioner of Agriculture for Alaska, in which he said that in forty years there had never been a crop failure in standard varieties of grain in the interior of that territory. It would be hard to equal this record in any other locality. The latest development of agricultural experimenters is a kind of barley which requires only 66 days to mature from seed to crop.

Experts say that a successful farming family with $4,000 as capital can become self-supporting in Alaska after the first year's harvest. Impecunious fugitives from the dust-bowl, they say, could probably not make good there, but competent farmers who want a change of environment and have courage, adaptability backed with reasonable capital would be likely to be successful in this form of pioneering.

WASHINGTON AND LEE

The sixth oldest American university is about to celebrate its 200th anniversary. This is Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va., which is campaigning to raise $3,000,000 to commemorate its 200th year in 1949.

Beginning as Augusta Academy, it was renamed Liberty Hall in the patriotic enthusiasm of the Revolution. George Washington gave $50,000 to aid it, and in his honor it was called successively Washington Academy and Washington College. When Gen. Robert E. Lee became its president after the Civil War it took its present name. Among its many distinguished graduates may be named John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for president in 1924 and now general chairman of the bi-centennial committee, and Arthur W. McCain, president of the Chase National Bank of New York.

Despite its age, Washington and Lee is not the oldest college in Virginia. That distinction belongs to William and Mary, founded in 1693.

For centuries man has satisfied himself with burning the fuel and using it for warmth and other simple purposes, by processes which entailed large waste. But more and more in recent years the chemical aspect of coal is enlarged, until its uses are often far more precious for chemical purposes than for mere heat.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—The peace has suddenly turned into a phantom of delight. No one here knows what it means—at least no one with any worthwhile official authority, although some suspect a lot. In fact, nearly everyone suspects it will turn out like the apparition of Wordsworth to be only "a moment's ornament."

Words could hardly fly higher (the altitude ceiling of phraseology being what it is) than Russia's abandonment of the veto in disarmament inspection. Far above lofty was Molotov's stratospheric reversal of position to embrace peace and actual inspection of armament production—uranium for one thing—everywhere in the world, including, strange as it seems, Russia. A foreign diplomat cannot even travel around Russia today to see the streets, much less anything secret. He cannot ascertain the volume of—say—on and off propaganda production in the U. S. S. R., much less the amount of uranium production, gold, airplanes, atom bombs or matchsticks. No one is free to ascertain anything about Russia. For her to open suddenly her unprecedented isolation to world inspection on any subject offers the best verbal prospect for peace yet proposed.

The common interpretation here is that as soon as any UN commission starts trying to go to Russia to find out how much uranium there is, the Soviet government will again cloak herself in impenetrable bear hide, hide it in buckets in the cellar, say the venture is too costly, furnish us some statistics her government considers substantial and advise us to believe these or not—or recommend that UN investigate Spain first, where she actually claimed atom bombs were hidden not so long ago—or the United States which is rumored to have both 59 and none at all. (AP says none; better private sources say 59.)

But do not be too sure of Russia walking out on this agreement, at least not until she puts her bombs under international management. A few well advised people say Russia has no bombs and, what is worse, few planes sufficient efficient to carry any if she ever got one. Her scientific experiments in atomic energy have been typically Russian, that is to say, unsuccessful. Her purge and reorganization of her scientists may not have been effective. If she has no modern armaments of air warfare (she never even had a bombing plane of long range value in the last war) why would she not want disarmament of those who have armaments—at least for a few years until she can get something? And why would she not abandon the veto and keep others from using one, especially others who have armaments, bombs and uranium to protect—and no comparable facilities for hiding same?

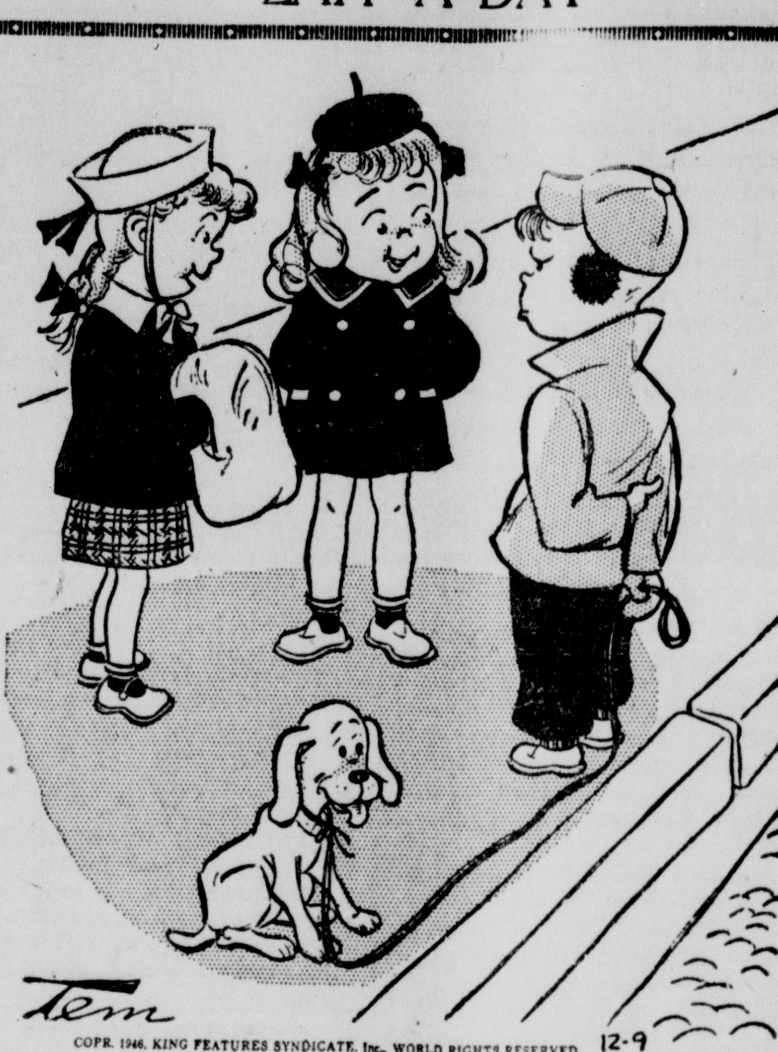

How this all will turn out, nobody knows.

With considerably less delight Eugene Meyer has quit the world bank, saying—although absolutely no one believes him—he intended to resign as soon as he got it started. His explanation was too thin to fool a blind man because he had turned his newspaper exclusively over to a board for operation and had been away only 5 months or so. Furthermore no one said anything at the time of his appointment to indicate his world bank direction would be temporary.

LEAD FROM HONOR BAD

LEADING a low card from a suit headed by a single honor is nearly always fraught with some amount of danger. In most cases it risks the presentation of a gratuitous trick to the declarer, which he could not get otherwise, together with the hazard that it may doom your own honor never to take a trick unless it is the ace of trumps. A lead from a doubleton or trebleton king, or from a doubleton or trebleton jack or queen, is likely to throw away an otherwise sure trick. That identical principle applies also if you lead from four headed by a 10, especially in the trump suit.

Either North should have taken the 5-No Trumps to 6-No Trumps, or South should have shifted from 6-Spades to 6-No Trumps, if he had understood that North meant merely to be cue-bidding the spade A, instead of supporting the suit, for the purpose of helping South to decide between a small and grand slam in No Trumps.

With only seven trumps and the defenders holding the J and 10 located as they were, South was due for certain defeat, even with the important finesse working just right. That is, he was untill he got some help. He did get some, on the very first lead, when West decided to lead a trump to prevent cross-ruffing. He happened to pick the 5 so it would be hard to read. But that made no difference. The moment he opened the suit at all, he assured the contract for South.

Declarer played the dummy's 6. East of course the J, and South the K. Reading the J as indicating lack of the 10, South finessed the spade 8, scored the A, led to the club A, dropped the spade 10 with the Q, went to dummy with the club K, finessed the hearts and ran out his small slam, giving up a diamond to the A at the end.

A NORTHERN CITY reports it had a snowfall of one-tenth of an inch. That, says shovel-weary Zadok Dumkopf, is his idea of an ideal blizzard.

For one thing, a one-tenth-of-an-inch snowfall manages very nicely to cover up the leaves we "forgot" to rake up.

SYNOPSIS

When Dr. Philip Somers and his wife, Sheila, decided divorce was the only solution to their incompatibility, Sheila, anxious to continue her business career in St. Louis, agreed Philip could have custody of their five-year-old daughter, Mary, who had lived in Colorado Springs with Sheila's mother since she was two. Philip, happy to have his small daughter again, comes to Denver to be the associate of Dr. Somers, but Mary, thoroughly spoiled by her grandmother, presents a problem to kindly Mrs. Lane, at whose boarding house they live. Among the Lane's other guests are attractive Anne Bowman and her friend, Jean Fay, owners of a local beauty shop; Roddy Malone, with whom Jean is in love, and elderly Mr. Grey. Had it not been for Anne's sympathetic understanding of Mary's problems, Philip would have had a difficult time curbing his unruly offspring.

Sally, Mrs. Lane's married daughter, leaves her small son, Billy, with her mother while she does some necessary shopping.

CHAPTER EIGHT
SALLY HAD NOT come when Anne went to announce dinner, but the rest were gathered on the porch. Billy, as friendly as a puppy, was sitting on the arm of Philip's chair. "I'm going to be a doctor when I grow up," Anne heard him say.

Philip asked, "What do you want to be a doctor for?"
"So I can have a knife and cut people up."
"Dinner," said Anne amid the laughter. Philip got up and swung Billy to his shoulder. "As one doctor to another, let's get out of it up."

As Anne stood holding the door open, she noticed Mary hanging back sulkily. When the others had gone into the house, Anne smiled at her. "Come on, honey; let's go."

Mary walked slowly past her, avoiding her outstretched hand. In the dining room, Billy was protesting violently because Mary had his chair. At the first threat to her rights, Mary ran and climbed into it, glaring defiantly at the would-be usurper.

Philip, after one look at her face, concentrated his efforts on Billy. "I think a dictionary is much more suitable for a doctor than a high chair," he said gravely. "I always liked one better myself."

Whether Billy was won by the argument, or intimidated by the glare, he conceded the point, and settled down on his dictionary, where he continued to hold the center of the stage.

"Had you forgotten what the city was like, Billy?" his grandfather asked him after the plates were served.

"Yes," said Billy, his mouth full of mashed potatoes. "The country is all full of towns, and the houses are all stuck together."

He had not the satisfied look Mary had when she made everyone laugh. He had not had the slightest intention of being funny.

After a few minutes she stopped making any pretense of eating, slipped down from her chair, and left the room.

Philip caught Mrs. Lane's eyes and shrugged. Mary had improved very much in her eating habits, but she still had lapses.

There was nothing wrong with Billy's appetite, but he was through before anyone else was, and, with a "Scuse me, Grandma," he too slipped down, and went after Mary.

Those whose birthday it is should find themselves in a place where they are able to put in operation ambitious plans and purposes long incubating, as the energies and faculties are under excellent stimulus for constructive ways and means for attaining objectives. Skill, energy, initiative and the urge to "go to it" are excellently spurred to attract support and in operation. The danger might be in too rash, hasty or overzealous grasp of the existing situation. Better be calm and self-contained than be carried away by impulse or temperamental urges.

"I wonder why Sally didn't get here," Mrs. Lane said.
"She had to get Billy a sun suit," said Anne. "His are all worn out—what there is of them to wear out."
"It will be a long time before Mary's is, at the rate she wears it," Mrs. Lane said. "Philip, don't you think she could leave it on as long as she wants to now?"
"I don't think so, but I'll see how brown she is. I wonder what her grandmother had against a little tan," Philip paused. "Did I hear something?"

They all heard something then, but they reached the porch too late to prevent Billy from knocking Mary down the steps. Her shrieks were sufficiently horrifying, especially to Billy's mother, coming up the walk. She was the first to reach them. "Oh, Billy!" she cried. "What have you done?"

Philip was beside Mary in a moment. "She isn't hurt that bad," he said, as he picked her up. "She couldn't be."
Billy's mother was shaking him. "Oh, Billy! To hit at little girl! How could you?"

"It's all right," Philip said. "I expect she asked for it. I'll take her in and look her over."

Though her shrieks caused him to look rather thoroughly, Philip could not find a single bruise to account for them. "Look here, Mary," he said finally in exasperation. "If you're going to play with boys, you'll have to learn to take it. Boys don't cry just because they get knocked down." He thought he detected a slight break in her sob; encouraged, he went on. "Boys knock each other down, and punch each other in the nose, and nobody thinks anything of it. . . . Then along comes a little girl, and wows!"

"He pulled my hair," Mary said defensively.

Philip gave it a little tug. "You don't mind when I pull it?"

She was quieter now, and if he left her, he thought, she might go to sleep. The excitement had worn her out.

When he went back downstairs, he found Anne alone on the front porch and dropped into the swing beside her. "What do you suppose started all that?" he asked.

Anne said instantly. "Jealousy." "Jealousy?" Philip sat up with a jerk.

"Yes. You gave Billy entirely too much attention. I don't know why you didn't see it."

"I guess I didn't think—" he began slowly, and stopped.

"You didn't think she cared enough about you to be jealous of you," Anne suggested. "It that it?"

"Well, yes. But I don't know that this is any indication that she does."

He saw her surprise and moved impatiently. "It's the egotism in people that makes them act like that. They have to be first and last. I never could see that it had much to do with love."

"But she's just a baby," Anne protested. "You sound as if—"

"I suppose I do." He met her eyes frankly. "I was thinking of her mother. I knew Mary was like her, but I had hoped she wouldn't show this particular trait."

"Oh, Philip. It isn't fair to be looking for everything in her that you don't like in her mother."

Philip was silent. She was right, of course. He should have known better—he'd been brought up on it.

Research Disproves This
Fortunately, recent research has disproved this. Hence, today we feel free to use penicillin to clear up colds, sore throats, sinus infections and other such trouble makers. Properly employed under the direction of a physician it is valuable not only in the first stage of a cold but in the second phases when such germs as streptococci become entrenched, causing the run-down condition associated with colds which "hang on."

Drs. Richard G. S. Meadley and Harold F. Barnard of England have recommended that penicillin in the form of tablets or as a snuff be used in the treatment of nose and throat infections. The snuff is used for nasal conditions. It is made up of penicillin in sulfathiazole. It is kept in a small bottle, the metal lid of which has a hole for pouring. A small amount is poured onto a piece of paper which is creased from corner to corner. The patient holds his head back and holds one nostril closed with his finger. The snuff is then tipped from the paper into one nostril and the patient sniffs it in. The process is then repeated on the other side. The film of snuff-coated mucus secretion lining the nose is slowly carried by the little hair-like structures in the nose, called cilia, to the throat and back part of the tongue.

Penicillin Still Present
Tests made showed that from one to four hours after using the snuff, penicillin was still present in the throat secretion. The snuff can be employed together with the penicillin tablets which are allowed to dissolve in the mouth.

This method of treatment was employed on a number of patients with nose and throat infection. It was found that the treatment brought quick relief from symptoms and no harmful effects of any kind were detected.

The treatment was used in cases of streptococcus infections of the tonsils, and rapid cures resulted. Patients with streptococcal throat infections were cured in two days less than those who received other types of treatment. The treatment was also found useful in cases of trench mouth. It would seem that this is a simple way of using penicillin and those with nose and throat infections might do well to employ it, of course, under the doctor's directions.

No Balanced Budget in 1947 | See OPA as Self-Liquidating
Government Experts Predict | Lid Off Hotel Rentals Soon?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Government experts say it is doubtful if the budget President Truman recommends to Congress in January will be in balance. They point to continued high expenditure estimates and a sharp drop in anticipated tax revenues.

The president's budget is expected to call for expenditures estimated at $35 to $36 billion dollars for the next fiscal year. Experts believe tax revenues may drop as low as $30 billion.

Well-informed observers expect no room for the 20 per cent cut in income taxes proposed by some Republican leaders in Congress—or even for a smaller tax cut.

The high military budget made necessary by the international situation is the primary reason for the high expenditure estimate. The armed forces are expected to be allotted 10 or 12 billion dollars—and a scuffle with the War and Navy departments is due if it is held to that level.

Items not likely to be trimmed include: Veterans' benefits, seven billions; interest on the debt, five billions; tax refunds, two billions; international commitments, three to four billions; aids to agriculture, one billion; public works, one billion; housing and social security, one billion; government operating expenses, two billions.

Many members of Congress believe that the United States must drill its youth and have a trained reserve which could be mobilized instantly in an emergency. However, those who believe this also realize that their stand on the issue will not bring them votes among the folk with teen-aged sons.

The question is almost certain to crop up soon after Congress convenes in January. Stormy debate is expected. Democrats, who controlled the last Congress, grappled with the question and then decided that the best place for it for the time being was on the shelf.

FERTILE ALASKA

It has become a commonplace to speak of Alaska as the last frontier for Americans, and to speak of it as ideal farming country, but most people still need a good deal of selling on the idea.

Herbert Hilscher, writing in the December Rotarian, tells of an interview with George W. Gasser, Commissioner of Agriculture for Alaska, in which he said that in forty years there had never been a crop failure in standard varieties of grain in the interior of that territory. It would be hard to equal this record in any other locality. The latest development of agricultural experimenters is a kind of barley which requires only 66 days to mature from seed to crop.

Experts say that a successful farming family with $4,000 as capital can become self-supporting in Alaska after the first year's harvest. Impetuous fugitives from the dust-bowl, they say, could probably not make good there, but competent farmers who want a change of environment and have courage, adaptability backed with reasonable capital would be likely to be successful in this form of pioneering.

WASHINGTON AND LEE

The sixth oldest American university is about to celebrate its 200th anniversary. This is Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va., which is campaigning to raise $3,000,000 to commemorate its 200th year in 1949.

Beginning as Augusta Academy, it was renamed Liberty Hall in the patriotic enthusiasm of the Revolution. George Washington gave $50,000 to aid it, and in his honor it was called successively Washington Academy and Washington College. When Gen. Robert E. Lee became its president after the Civil War it took its present name. Among its many distinguished graduates may be named John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for president in 1924 and now general chairman of the bicentennial committee, and Arthur W. McCain, president of the Chase National Bank of New York.

Despite its age, Washington and Lee is not the oldest college in Virginia. That distinction belongs to William and Mary, founded in 1693.

Either North should have taken the 5-No Trumps to 6-No Trumps, or South should have shifted from 6-Spades to 6-No Trumps, if he had understood that North meant merely to be cue-bidding the spade A, instead of supporting the suit, for the purpose of helping South to decide between a small and grand slam in No Trumps.

With only seven trumps and the defenders holding the J and 10 located as they were, South was due for certain defeat, even with the important finesse working just right. That is, he was until he got some help. He did get some, on the very first lead, when West decided to lead a trump to prevent cross-ruffing. He happened to pick the 5 so it would be hard to read. But that made no difference. The moment he opened the suit at all, he assured the contract for South.

Declarer played the dummy's 6. East of course the J, and South the K. Reading the J as indicating lack of the 10, South finessed the spade 8, scored the A, led to the club A, dropped the spade 10 with the Q, went to dummy with the club K, finessed the hearts and ran out his small slam, giving up a diamond to the A at the end.

A NORTHERN CITY reports it had a snowfall of one-tenth of an inch. That, says shovel-wary Zadok Dumkopf, is his idea of an ideal blizzard.

For one thing, a one-tenth-of-an-inch snowfall manages very nicely to cover up the leaves we "forgot" to rake up.

We would never get sore at the weatherman if he says he gave us cold always be removed with a few swipes of a whisk broom.

Grandpappy Jenkins thinks one-tenth of an inch is too much in the way of flakes. The only snow scenes he has ever enjoyed are those to be found on Christmas greeting cards.

SYNOPSIS

When Dr. Philip Raider and his wife, Sheila, decided divorce was the only solution to their incompatibility, Sheila, anxious to continue her business career in St. Louis, agreed Philip could have custody of their five-year-old daughter, Mary, who had lived in Colorado Springs with Sheila's mother, since she was two. Philip, happy to have his small daughter again, came to Denver to be the associate of Dr. Somers, but Mary, thoroughly spoiled by her grandmother, presents a problem to Philip's wife, Anne, at whose boarding house they live. Among the Raider's other guests are attractive Anne Bowman and her friend, Jean Fay, owners of a local beauty shop; Roddy Malone, with whom Jean is in love, and elderly Mr. Grey. Had it not been for Anne's sympathetic understanding of Mary's problems, Philip would have had a difficult time carrying his newly offspring.

Sally, Mrs. Lane's married daughter, leaves her small son, Billy, with her mother while she does some necessary shopping.

CHAPTER EIGHT
SALLY HAD not come when Anne went to announce dinner, but the rest were gathered on the porch. Billy, as friendly as a puppy, was sitting on the arm of Philip's chair. "I'm going to be a doctor when I grow up," Anne heard him say.

Philip asked, "What do you want to be a doctor for?"
"So I can have a knife and cut people up," said Anne amid the laughter. Philip got up and swung Billy to his shoulder. "As one doctor to another, let's go cut it up."

As Anne stood holding the door open, she noticed Mary hanging back sulkily. When the others had gone into the house, Anne smiled at her. "Come on, honey; let's go."

Mary walked slowly past her, avoiding her outstretched hand. In the dining room, Billy was protesting violently because Mary had his chair. At the first threat to her rights, Mary ran and climbed into it, glaring defiantly at the would-be usurper.

Philip, after one look at her face, concentrated his efforts on Billy. "I think a dictionary is much more suitable for a doctor than a high chair," he said gravely. "I always liked one better myself."

Whether Billy was won by the argument, or intimidated by the glare, he conceded the point, and settled down on his dictionary, where he continued to hold the center of the stage.

"Had you forgotten what the city was like, Billy?" his grandfather asked him after the plates were served.

"Yes," said Billy, his mouth full of mashed potatoes. "The country is all full of towns, and the houses are all stuck together."

He had not the satisfied look Mary had when she made everyone laugh. He had not had the slightest intention of being funny.

And Mary did not think he was. After a few minutes she stopped making any pretense of eating, slipped down from her chair, and left the room.

There was nothing wrong with Billy's appetite, but he was through before anyone else was, and, with a "Scuse me, Grandma," he too slipped down, and went after Mary.

"I wonder why Sally didn't get here," Mrs. Lane said.

"She had to get Billy's suit," said Anne. "He's all worn out—what there is of them to wear."

"It will be a long time before Mary's is, at the rate she wears it," Mrs. Lane said. "Philip, don't you think she could leave it on as long as she wants to now?"

"I don't think so, but I'll see how brown she is. I wonder what her grandmother had against a little tan," Philip paused. "Did I hear something?"

They all heard something then, but they reached the porch too late to prevent Billy from knocking Mary down the steps. Her shrieks were sufficiently horrifying, especially to Billy's mother, coming up the walk. She was the first to reach them. "Oh, Billy!" she cried. "What have you done?"

Philip was beside Mary in a moment. "She isn't hurt that bad," he said, as he picked her up. "She couldn't be."

Billy's mother was shaking him. "Oh, Billy! To hit at little girl! How could you?"

"It's all right," Philip said. "I expect she asked for it. I'll take her in and look her over."

Though her shrieks caused him to look rather thoroughly, Philip could not find a single bruise to account for them. "Look here, Mary," he said finally in exasperation. "If you're going to play with boys, you'll have to learn to take it. Boys don't cry just because they get knocked down. He thought he detected a slight break in her sobs; encouraged, he went on. "Boys knock each other down, and punch each other in the nose, and nobody thinks anything of it."

Then along comes a little girl, and wows!"

"He pulled my hair," Mary said defensively.

Philip gave it a little tug. "You don't mind when I pull it?"

She was quieter now, and if he left her, he thought, she might go to sleep. The excitement had worn her out.

When he went back downstairs, he found Anne alone on the front porch and dropped into the swing beside her. "What do you suppose started all that?" he asked.

Anne said instantly, "Jealousy." "Jealousy?" Philip sat up with a jerk.

"Yes. You gave Billy entirely too much attention. I don't know why you didn't see it."

"I guess I didn't think—" he began slowly, and stopped.

"You didn't think she cared enough about you to be jealous of you," Anne suggested. "It that it?"

"Well, yes. But I don't know that this is any indication that she does."

He saw her surprise and moved impatiently. "It's the egotism in people that makes them act like that. They have to be first and last. I never could see that it had much to do with love."

"But she's just a baby," Anne protested. "You sound as if—"

"I suppose I do. I met her eyes frankly. I was thinking of her mother. I knew Mary was like her, but I had hoped she wouldn't show this particular trait."

"Oh, Philip. It isn't fair to be looking for everything in her that you didn't like in her mother."

Philip was silent. She was right, of course. He should have known better—he'd been brought up on it.

himself. It had been "ther. "You're just like your mother, Philip," or, "You're just like your father," with complete disapproval implied in both cases. It was a good thing, he thought wryly, that he and Sheila were not together, for they would most assuredly have taken out their irritation with each other in the same way.

The screen door banged, and Mary came out on the porch. She stood undecided a moment before she went over and climbed up between them.

Philip thought of his wife asleep, and he took hold of her wrist watch and did her best to wind it. "Do you like boys better than girls?"

"I should say not!"

"Do you like girls better?"

"Much better." He pulled one of her curls gently. "Boys don't have any curls to pull."

Anne's eyes met his in an understanding smile. "I don't know what he'd do, fary, if he didn't have you to tease."

"I don't know either," said Philip.

Philip was in a discouraged mood. It did not take anything very definite to bring one on. He had never been blessed with an equable temperament, but neither, he told himself, was he cast up to the same extent that he was cast down. Somers had made the rather disconcerting criticism that he held himself in too much. "You'd feel better if you let off steam when you're irritated," he had said; and Philip had answered, "Maybe, but you can't go around exploding in people's faces just to relieve your own feelings."

That exchange had been occasioned by Philip's first bit of bad luck. He had pulled a young girl through an attack of quinsy—a very bad attack which had necessitated tubular feeding for three days—but after she should have been up and around, she was still lying listlessly in bed, and Philip had been making daily visits in the effort to determine what was wrong.

He had spoken to Dr. Somers about it finally, and the older man accompanied him on his next visit. When they were on their way back to the office, Dr. Somers gave Philip his professional opinion with unprofessional amusement.

"Don't you see how the girl feels about you, Philip? She's not going to get well as long as you go to see her every day."

Philip had not believed him at first, but it had happened to him before, and in spite of his annoyance, he had conceded that Dr. Somers might better take over. The unsolicited attentions of women still surprised him; though they were even more marked out here where he was known to be unattached.

He could have taken it as a joke on himself with equanimity, but the thing did not end there. Another patient, a friend of the girl's mother, asked for Dr. Somers instead of Philip who had been handling her case. Somers admitted, on questioning, that she had heard that Marian Strong got well as soon as Dr. Raider had withdrawn.

The next thing Philip told himself pessimistically, would be for them to say that he had been asked to withdraw because of unprofessional conduct.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, December 9

MONDAY'S astrological forecast has indications of the very auspicious prospect of putting over the "big ideas" plans, hopes, and wishes incubating in the last few days, when the creative urges were probably "working overtime." There is promise of the concentrating of energies, initiative and resources on practical bases, but be not carried to excess or over-acting in such course. Act on studied plans not passionate impulses, for real results.

For The Birthday
Those whose birthday it is should find themselves in a place where they are able to put in operation ambitious plans and purposes long incubating, as the energies and faculties are under excellent stimulus for constructive ways and means for attaining objectives. Skill, energy, initiative and the urge to "go to it" are excellently spurred to attract support and co-operation. The danger might be in too rash, hasty or overzealous grasp of the existing situation. Better be calm and self-contained than be carried away by impulse or temperamental urges.

A child born on this day is endowed with splendid energy, talents and practical skills, with initiative and enterprise. The danger is such might be carried to extravagant heights.

Treating A Throat Infection

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AS time goes on, penicillin constantly widens its field of usefulness. Right now it seems likely that, in addition to its life-saving magic in heretofore fatal diseases, it will prove a great boon in banishing the host of nagging, little infections which keep so many of us below par.

Only a short time ago many people hesitated to take penicillin for these minor ailments, having heard that its use in this way might cause them to develop a tolerance which would make penicillin useless in the event of some later, serious infection.

Research Disproves This
Fortunately, recent research has disproved this. Hence, today we feel free to use penicillin to clear up colds, sore throats, sinus infections and other such trouble makers. Properly employed under the direction of a physician it is valuable not only in the first stage of a cold but in the second—when such germs as streptococci become entrenched, causing the run-down condition associated with colds which "hang on."

Drs. Richard G. S. Meadley and Harold F. Barnard of England have recommended that penicillin in the form of tablets or as a snuff be used in the treatment of nose and throat infections. The snuff is used in nasal conditions. It is made up of penicillin in sulfathiazole. It is kept in a small bottle, the metal lid of which has a hole for pouring. A small amount is poured onto a piece of paper which is creased from corner to corner. The patient holds his head back and holds one nostril closed with his finger. The snuff is then tipped from the paper into one nostril and the patient sniffs it in. The process is then repeated on the other side. The film of snuff-coated mucus secretion lining the nose is slowly carried by the little hair-like structures in the nose, called cilia, to the throat and back part of the tongue.

Penicillin Still Present
Tests made showed that from one to four hours after using the snuff, penicillin was still present in the throat secretion. The snuff can be employed together with the penicillin tablets which are allowed to dissolve in the mouth.

This method of treatment was employed on a number of patients with nose and throat infection. It was found that the treatment brought quick relief from symptoms and no harmful effects of any kind were detected.

The treatment was used in cases of streptococcal infections of the tonsils, and rapid cures resulted. Patients with streptococcal throat infections were cured in two days less than those who received other types of treatment. The treatment was also found useful in cases of trench mouth. It would seem that this is a simple way of using penicillin and those with nose and throat infections might do well to employ it, of course, under the doctor's directions.

No Balanced Budget in 1947 See OPA as Self-Liquidating
Government Experts Predict Lid Off Hotel Rentals Soon?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Government experts say it is doubtful if the budget President Truman recommends to Congress in January will be in balance. They point to continued high expenditure estimates and a sharp drop in anticipated tax revenues.

The president's budget is expected to call for expenditures estimated at $35 to $36 billion dollars for the next fiscal year. Experts believe tax revenues may drop as low as $30 billion.

Well-informed observers expect no room for the 20 per cent cut in income taxes proposed by some Republican leaders in Congress—or even for a smaller tax cut.

The high military budget made necessary by the international situation is the primary reason for the high expenditure estimate. The armed forces are expected to be allotted 10 or 12 billion dollars—and a scuffle with the War and Navy departments is due if it is held to that level. Items not likely to be trimmed include:

Veterans' benefits, seven billions; interest on the debt, five billions; tax refunds, two billions; international commitments, three to four billions; aids to agriculture, one billion; public works, one billion; housing and social security, one billion; government operating expenses, two billions.

President Truman

● SOME OBSERVERS in WASHINGTON are surprised at the "slow death" of OPA. The agency, which has been all but buried officially, is going strong on some fronts even now.

Usually reliable capital sources say that OPA is to be self-liquidating and will continue to control prices of sugar, syrups, rice and rents—the few remaining items on which there is price control. However, some of these items have been scheduled for transfer to some other branch of the government for supervision.

It is rumored around town also that some new agency will be set up to assume the duties of CPA, OPA and other control agencies. There is some possibility, incidentally, that OPA will order the lid off hotel room rentals. Although this order is being prepared by OPA, there is a likelihood that it will be held up pending establishment of the other new agency which will take over OPA's functions under the reorganization plan.

● THE REPUBLICAN-CONTROLLED 80th CONGRESS has fallen heir to an issue which it would rather not hear anything about at all. That is the matter of whether the United States is to have compulsory military training.

Many members of Congress believe that the United States must drill its youth and have a trained reserve which could be mobilized instantly in an emergency. However, those who believe this also realize that their stand on the issue will not bring them votes among the folk with teen-aged sons.

The question is almost certain to crop up soon after Congress convenes in January. Stormy debate is expected.

Democrats, who controlled the last Congress, grappled with the question and then decided that the best place for it for the time being was on the shelf.

HELPFUL HINTS
Fill the cooking utensil in which you have cooked fish with clear water, add a tablespoon or two of vinegar, and bring the water to a boil for a minute or two. This trick not only banishes the fishy odor, but loosens food stuck in the pan.

For less wear and tear on tablecloths when ironing, fold them hem to hem occasionally instead of lengthwise. They will last longer. Creasing at the same point continually tends to increase wear at that point.

Carved mahogany furniture should be dusted with a soft flannel cloth over a rather stiff brush.

Scioto Chapel Aid Society Luncheon Held At Robtown

Scioto Chapel Ladies Aid society entertained members and guests at a potluck luncheon, for the December session, at the Robtown parish house. The room was decorated with bells, wreaths, candles and Christmas flowers, in keeping with the yuletide season.

Hostesses for the affair were: Mrs. Edna O'Hara, Mrs. Dora Fausnaugh and Mrs. Coit Wilson. Mrs. Richard Hudson, president, conducted the business meeting, and read scriptures. The Rev. O. W. Smith offered a prayer followed by the group singing, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing".

Mrs. Fausnaugh was in charge of the program, and presented Mrs. Cecil Ward, who gave a reading, "The Observance of the Sabbath". The entertainment calendar committee report was read by Mrs. Ben Walker. Mrs. Warren Graham was received into the society as a new member.

Sharon Younklin offered a vocal solo, "Santa Claus is Coming to Town". "White Christmas" was sung by Mrs. E. R. Brooks. A duet arrangement of "Christmas Songs" was presented by Mrs. Charles Mumaw Jr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson.

Exchange of gifts and the group singing, "Joy to the World," brought the meeting to a close.

CIRCLE 5 PARTY CANCELED
Circle 5 of the Woman's Society of Christian Service will join with the other circles in having a Christmas party in the church on Wednesday at 6 p. m. The additional party which members of circle 5 had planned has been cancelled. Mrs. Stanley Glick is chairman of the group.

HELPFUL HINTS
Fill the cooking utensil in which you have cooked fish with clear water, add a tablespoon or two of vinegar, and bring the water to a boil for a minute or two. This trick not only banishes the fishy odor, but loosens food stuck in the pan.

For less wear and tear on tablecloths when ironing, fold them hem to hem occasionally instead of lengthwise. They will last longer. Creasing at the same point continually tends to increase wear at that point.

Carved mahogany furniture should be dusted with a soft flannel cloth over a rather stiff brush.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Nevertheless there are to be even greater delights. Russia is now to soar on the wings of her stratospheric words to get $1,000,000,000 in loans from us. The five peace treaties are to be signed and presented to the senate. Not much objection to ratification will be made, except perhaps about the luscious reparations to be collected by Russia. Mr. Byrnes will bring up Germany and Austria as the next step and maybe try for peace about them, while the delight lasts and possibly before Russia gets our money.

All statesmen will practically bust in swelling with good feeling at the lovely apparition of peace they have turned out—the lofty words they cannot define, upon which they have built their peace.

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of The Cincinnati Herald.

Employment

GO FAR EAST, YOUNG MAN

A number of the famous, battle-tested divisions of the United States Army and Korea are now accepting the enlistments of hand-picked, keen young men for service in the Far East.

Among those great fighting divisions are such noted units as the First Cavalry Division, now mechanized in Japan; the 6th Infantry Division, on duty in Korea; the 7th Infantry Division, now in Korea; the 24th Infantry Division, known as the "Victory Division," serving in Japan; and the 25th Infantry, or "Tropic Lightning" Division, also stationed in Japan.

A 2-year enlistment for duty in the Orient will enable you to choose one of the famous divisions—and you can be a part of it, following initial training in the United States. A 20% increase in pay for overseas service, plus many additional advantages, make this a fine chance for the young man who wants to see distant lands and fill an important post in the peacetime Army. Ask for details at U. S. Army Recruiting Station, V.F.W. Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GIANTS CAPTURE EASTERN CROWN

Browns Set New Scoring Mark With 66-14 Win Over Brooklyn

By International News Service. It will be the New York Giants versus the Chicago Bears at the Polo Grounds next Sunday for the championship of the National Professional Football league.

The Giants qualified handsomely for the playoff when they beat the Washington Redskins yesterday with amazing ease, 31 to 0, for the eastern title.

Frank Filchick of the Giants, who used to be an understudy for Sammy Baugh at Washington, outplayed Slingin' Sam by a wide margin. Frankie pitched two touchdown passes and set up another score for the Giants, while the Redskins never got started.

A capacity crowd of 60,337 fans saw the Giants break the spell which Washington had held over them.

The Giants will have to be good next Sunday to stop the Bears, who romped to a 45 to 24 win over the Lions at Detroit before 21,573.

Philadelphia annexed second place in the eastern division by smashing the Boston Yanks, 40 to 14. Roy Zimmerman uncorked three touchdown passes for the winners.

The champion Los Angeles Rams ran over Green Bay, 38 to 17.

In the rival All-America conference, Cleveland's dazzling Browns buried the Dodgers under a 66 to 14 score, a league record, before 14,600 fans at Brooklyn. Otto Graham, ace passer of the circuit, dominated the game in the absence of Glenn Dobbs of the Dodgers.

San Francisco's Forty-Niners clinched second place behind Cleveland in the western division by swamping the Los Angeles Dons, 48 to 7.

Jersey City, farm club of the New York Giants, won the American League crown by scoring a 14 to 13 win over Akron, farm club of the Chicago Bears, at Jersey City.

VARIPAPA COPS BOWLING CROWN IN TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—A 52-year-old foxy grandpa named Andrew Varipapa ruled the bowling world today after smoldering 15 younger and more tenderly-regarded national all-star finalists into an awe-struck mixture of submission and disbelief.

Varipapa, a pudgy, gray-haired ex-machinist from Hempstead of New York's Long Island, last night grabbed the $2,000 first prize and all the sustaining advertising confessionals which go with it when he finished a nine-day

DYE SCHEDULES WORK FOR BUCKS AFTER OPENER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Tippy Dye, Ohio State University's half-pint basketball coach, blueprinted an abundance of work for his Bucks today after seeing them in action for the first time Saturday night.

The Bucks squeezed by Pittsburgh in the opener at the coliseum, 39 to 33, before a capacity crowd of 7,663. Dye has nearly two weeks to ready his squad for the next test. The Bucks leave Dec. 18 for a four-game swing along the Pacific coast. The series opens Dec. 21 against the University of Washington at Seattle.

Ohio State piled up a 21-11 first half lead against the Panthers Saturday, but lost the margin early in the second half. Substitute forward Jim Harris sparked a late Buck drive that salvaged a victory.

Freshman Les Pugh topped Buck scoring with 12 points. Harris and center Jack Underman followed with eight apiece. Sam David of Pitt had ten.

Warren Amling, football captain who didn't report for basketball until last Tuesday, was a big factor in the second-half Buck spurt. He was thrown into the breach when Captain Paul Huston was shaken up in a fall.

The victory was Ohio's 22nd straight at home. It also marked the Bucks' return to the state fairgrounds coliseum, from which they had been barred since 1942 by wartime Army activities.

BROWNS SET FOR ALL-AMERICA'S FIRST PLAYOFF

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—The preliminaries disposed of Cleveland's Browns set themselves today for the first season All-America conference playoff—the title tilt with New York a week from Sunday at the Cleveland stadium.

Champions of the western division, the Browns prepped for the playoff with the titans of the East by smashing Brooklyn, 66 to 14, yesterday at Ebbets Field before 14,600 disheartened fans.

The victory may prove a costly one as Cleveland's league scoring champion, Lou "The Toe" Groza, was carried from the field in the third quarter with an ankle injury. Whether the injury was just a sprain or a fracture was not determined immediately and x-ray pictures were to be taken.

Groza clinched the All-America point-getting title by raising his season total to 85. Yesterday's game was the last regular contest of the season, the Browns winding up with a record of 10 won and two lost.

chore in the 6th annual national all-star individual tourney. Varipapa finished going away with 314.16 Peterson points, as opposed to 308.04 for second-placed Allie Brandt and 307.41 for Julie McMahon of Chicago, who finished third.

HECTIC BIG NINE RACE PREDICTED

Purdue, Last Team To Get Started, Plays Tonight; Others Look Good

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—We may be in for the kind of Winter Grandpa used to know, but they didn't have basketball in Grandpa's day—not the kind that's going to spark what may be the most hectic season in Western Conference history.

You had early-season proof of that. All but one of the Big Nine quintets today had already launched their 1946-47 campaigns with non-conference activity. And every one of 'em looked good.

Purdue, the only conference five which has yet to play a game, will remedy that tonight by breaking open its schedule against an underdog Wabash five. Wisconsin plays Butler, South Dakota meets Minnesota—and, of course, there's always the big Notre-Dame-Indiana battle on tonight's card.

There'll be plenty of action during the week too, with nine ball games—seven of 'em Saturday night—scheduled in addition to tonight's quartet of encounters involving Big Nine clubs.

But you had to check the week-end scores to sense the hectic fight for supremacy which will dominate the Big Nine race once der way Jan. 1.

The Whiz Kids were back at Illinois, and Illinois, rated top team in the country in pre-season predictions, looked just that. The Illini scored an 87 to 39, victory Friday night over Cornell (Ia.) college.

Then came Saturday night, and everybody was winning. Two new coaches—Tippy Dye at Ohio State and Ossie Cowles at Michigan—saw their charges off to hefty starts.

Ohio State's defending league champions staged a second-period rally to undermine a battling Pittsburgh quintet, 39 to 33. Michigan, meanwhile, was trimming Michigan State, 51 to 29.

Indiana's Hoosiers kept right on rolling, defeating Miami (O.), 69 to 36. Wisconsin leveled Marquette 65 to 51.

And in Iowa City, Ia., Pops Harrison's cagers put teeth in a dormant Iowa threat by walloping Kansas City, 54 to 41.

GLASS BOWL SUCCESS

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 9.—Toledo's first Glass Bowl game was an avowed success today although the University of Toledo Rockets acted the part of rude hosts in Saturday's inaugural. The Rockets humbled previously unbeaten Bates college of Lewiston, Maine, 21 to 12, before 15,000 fans including Gov. Lausche.

COUNTY RIVALRY FLARES AGAIN TUESDAY NIGHT

Ashville Host To Circleville For What Promises To Be Stiff Battle

Another ancient basketball rivalry flares again Tuesday night when Circleville high school Tigers play at Ashville.

For years these teams have been forgetting the records when they meet and Tuesday night will be no exception. Ashville is undefeated so far this season while the Tigers have won once in three starts, but Circleville fans are expecting a victory. Of course, Ashville supporters are just as positive their favorites will be victors.

Circleville has met two tough teams, bowing to Lancaster and Chillicothe, both of which are expected to "go places" this season. Both have plenty of height, a factor with which the Tigers cannot cope because of their own small size.

Ashville to date has won from Pickaway township, Lancaster St. Mary's, Salt Creek, Monroe, Groveport and Washington township. The team, while not rated as high as recent championship clubs, is said to be well-balanced and will be especially tough on the Ashville floor.

Coach John Daugherty probably will start the same boys who have been nominated to be in the opening lineup in the last two games: Bob Steele, Paul Smallwood, Bob Eccard, Bob McCoy and Glenn Smallwood.

Coach L. W. Fullen is expected to start Rennie Heise, Don Thomas, Jerry and Bill Trego and Bob Glick. They have been carrying the scoring burden so far, although several other players have been looking good and will undoubtedly see plenty of action.

Needless to say the Ashville gym will be packed before the reserve teams of the two schools play about 7 p. m.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Nevertheless there are to be even greater delights. Russia is now to soar on the wings of heratospheric words to get $1,000,000,000 in loans from us. The five peace treaties are to be signed and presented to the senate. Not much objection to ratification will be made, except perhaps about the luscious reparations to be collected by Russia. Mr. Byrnes will bring up Germany and Austria as the next step and maybe try for peace about them, while the delight lasts and possibly before Russia gets our money.

All statesmen will practically bust in swelling with good feeling at the lovely apparition of peace they have turned out—the lofty words they cannot define, upon which they have built their peace.

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

Employment

GO FAR EAST, YOUNG MAN

A number of the famous, battle-tested divisions on duty in Japan and Korea are now accepting the enlistments of hand-picked, keen young men for service in the Far East.

Among those great fighting divisions are such noted units as the First Cavalry Division, now mechanized in Japan; the 6th Infantry Division, on duty in Korea; the 7th Infantry Division, now in Korea; the 24th Infantry Division, known as the "Victory Division," serving in Japan; and the 25th Infantry, or "Tropic Lightning Division," also stationed in Japan.

A 2-year enlistment for duty in the United States will enable you to choose one of the famous divisions—any you can be a part of it, following initial training in the United States. A 20% increase in pay for overseas service, plus many additional advantages, makes this a fine chance for the young man who wants to see distant lands and fill an important post in the peacetime Army. Ask for details at: U. S. Army Recruiting Station, V. F. W. Bldg., Circleville, Ohio.

GIANTS CAPTURE EASTERN CROWN

Browns Set New Scoring Mark With 66-14 Win Over Brooklyn

By International News Service
It will be the New York Giants versus the Chicago Bears at the Polo Grounds next Sunday for the championship of the National Professional Football league.

The Giants qualified handsomely for the playoff when they beat the Washington Redskins yesterday with amazing ease, 31 to 0, for the eastern title.

Frank Filchock of the Giants, who used to be an understudy for Sammy Baugh at Washington, outplayed Slingin' Sam by a wide margin. Frankie pitched two touchdown passes and set up another score for the Giants, while the 'Skins never got started.

A capacity crowd of 60,337 fans saw the Giants break the spell which Washington had held over them. The Giants will have to be good next Sunday to stop the Bears, who romped to a 45 to 24 win over the Lions at Detroit before 21,573.

Philadelphia annexed second place in the eastern division by smashing the Boston Yanks, 40 to 14. Roy Zimmerman uncorked three touchdown passes for the winners.

The champion Los Angeles Rams ran over Green Bay, 38 to 17.

In the rival All-America conference, Cleveland's dazzling Browns buried the Dodgers under a 66 to 14 score, a league record, before 14,600 fans at Brooklyn. Otto Graham, ace passer of the circuit, dominated the game in the absence of Glenn Dobbs of the Dodgers.

San Francisco's Forty-Niners clinched second place behind Cleveland in the western division by swamping the Los Angeles Dons, 48 to 7.

Jersey City, farm club of the New York Giants, won the American League crown by scoring a 14 to 13 win over Akron, farm club of the Chicago Bears, at Jersey City.

VARIPAPA COPS BOWLING CROWN IN TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—A 52-year-old foxy grandpa named Andrew Varipapa ruled the bowling world today after smoldering 15 younger and more tenderly-regarded national all-star finalists into an awe-struck mixture of submission and disbelief.

Varipapa, a pudgy, gray-haired ex-machinist from Hempstead of New York's Long Island, last night grabbed the $2,000 first prize and all the sustaining advertising professionals which go with it when he finished a nine-day

DYE SCHEDULES WORK FOR BUCKS AFTER OPENER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Tippy Dye, Ohio State University's half-pint basketball coach, blueprinted an abundance of work for his Bucks today after seeing them in action for the first time Saturday night. The Bucks squeezed by Pittsburgh in the opener at the coliseum, 39 to 33, before a capacity crowd of 7,663.

Dye has nearly two weeks to ready his squad for the next test. The Bucks leave Dec. 18 for a four-game swing along the Pacific coast. The series opens Dec. 21 against the University of Washington at Seattle.

Ohio State piled up a 21-11 first half lead against the Panthers Saturday, but lost the margin early in the second half. Substitute forward Jim Harris sparked a late Buck drive that salvaged a victory. Freshman Les Pugh topped Buck scoring with 12 points. Harris and center Jack Underman followed with eight apiece. Sam David of Pitt had ten.

Warren Amling, football captain who didn't report for basketball until last Tuesday, was a big factor in the second-half Buck spurt. He was thrown into the breach when Captain Paul Huston was shaken up in a fall.

The victory was Ohio's 22nd straight at home. It also marked the Bucks' return to the state fairgrounds coliseum, from which they had been barred since 1942 by wartime Army activities.

BROWNS SET FOR ALL-AMERICA'S FIRST PLAYOFF

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—The preliminaries disposed of, Cleveland's Browns set themselves today for the first season All-America conference playoff—the title tilt with New York a week from Sunday at the Cleveland stadium.

Champions of the western division, the Browns prepped for the playoff with the titans of the East by smashing Brooklyn, 66 to 14, yesterday at Ebbets Field before 14,600 disheartened fans.

The victory may prove a costly one as Cleveland's league scoring champion, Lou "The Toe" Groza, was carried from the field in the third quarter with an ankle injury. Whether the injury was just a sprain or a fracture was not determined immediately and x-ray pictures were to be taken.

Groza clinched the All-America point-getting title by raising his season total to 85. Yesterday's game was the last regular contest of the season, the Browns winding up with a record of 10 won and two lost.

chore in the 6th annual national all-star individual tourney. Varipapa finished going away with 314.16 Peterson points, as opposed to 308.04 for second-place Allie Brandt and 307.41 for Julie McMahon of Chicago, who finished

Purdue, Last Team To Get Started, Plays Tonight; Others Look Good

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—We may be in for the kind of Winter Grandpa used to know, but they didn't have basketball in Grandpa's day—not the kind that's going to spark what may be the most hectic season in Western Conference history.

You had early-season proof of that. All but one of the Big Nine quintets today had already launched their 1946-47 campaigns with non-conference activity. And every one of 'em looked good.

Purdue, the only conference five which has yet to play a game, will remedy that tonight by breaking open its schedule against an underdog Wabash five. Wisconsin plays Butler, South Dakota meets Minnesota—and, of course, there's always the big Notre-Dame-Indiana battle on tonight's card.

There'll be plenty of action during the week too, with nine ball games—seven of 'em Saturday night—scheduled in addition to tonight's quartet of encounters involving Big Nine clubs.

But you had to check the weekend scores to sense the hectic fight for supremacy which will dominate the Big Nine race once der way Jan. 1.

The Whiz Kids were back at Illinois, and Illinois, rated top team in the country in pre-season predictions, looked just that. The Illini scored an 87 to 39 victory Friday night over Cornell (Ia.) college.

Then came Saturday night, and everybody was winning. Two new coaches—Tippy Dye at Ohio State and Ossie Cowles at Michigan—saw their charges off to hefty starts.

Ohio State's defending league champions staged a second-period rally to undermine a battling Pittsburgh quintet, 39 to 33. Michigan, meanwhile, was trimming Michigan State, 51 to 29.

Indiana's Hoosiers kept right on rolling, defeating Miami (O.), 69 to 36. Wisconsin leveled Marquette 65 to 51.

And in Iowa City, Ia., Pops Harrison's cagers put teeth in a dormant Iowa threat by walloping Kansas City, 54 to 41.

GLASS BOWL SUCCESS

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 9.—Toledo's first Glass Bowl game was an avowed success today although the University of Toledo Rockets acted the part of rude hosts in Saturday's inaugural. The Rockets humbled previously unbeaten Bates college of Lewiston, Maine, 21 to 12, before 15,000 fans including Gov. Lausche.

Obstinacy and contention are common qualities, most appearing in, and best becoming, a mean and illiterate soul.—Montaigne.

Hints on Etiquette

"Good breeding is the art of pleasing or contributing as much as possible to the ease and happiness of those with whom you converse," has been said, and truly.

While in the city, she visits a night club with the sculptor, is mistaken for a strip tease dancer and ends up in jail. Irene Dunne plays Anne, the serious minded mayor, and Walter Pidgeon acts the part of George, the sculptor, who is determined to bring out her true personality. When George comes to Anne's little town to work on the statue, her teen-age stepdaughter becomes infatuated with him. Before lady mayor and her sculptors realize their love for each other, they become engaged to different people, the statue is

COMEDY—
Irene Dunne and Walter Pidgeon will play the leading roles in the Lux Radio Theatre's dramatization of the film comedy, "Together Again", Monday at 9 p. m. (EST) over CBS. William Keighley is the producer of the full-hour dramatic airshow and Lou Silvers directs the music. "Together Again" tells the hilarious tale of the young and attractive lady mayor of a small New England town, the widow of its former mayor, who goes to New York to commission a sculptor to remodel a statue of her late husband. While in the city, she visits a night club with the sculptor, is mistaken for a strip tease dancer and ends up in jail. Irene Dunne plays Anne, the serious minded mayor, and Walter Pidgeon acts the part of George, the sculptor, who is determined to bring out her true personality. When George comes to Anne's little town to work on the statue, her teen-age stepdaughter becomes infatuated with him. Before lady mayor and her sculptors realize their love for each other, they become engaged to different people, the statue is broken and they are faced with a complicated situation.

Circleville Lights Go On Again As Soft Coal Strike Ends

DARBY SCHOOL REOPENS AFTER SHORT VACATION

Merchants And Customers Are Happy As Freight, Mail Curbs Are Lifted

Lights are on again in Circleville and throughout the nation as a result of the return to work of the striking coal miners.

Immediately after the settlement was announced in Washington, Saturday afternoon, the dim-out order was revoked, and the strike-induced restrictions on railroad transportation and the embargoes on parcel post and freight shipments were cancelled.

George D. McDowell, Pickaway county superintendent of schools, announced the re-opening Monday of the Darby township school. The school was closed Dec. 3 because of lack of fuel to heat the building and 224 students were given an unscheduled vacation. Supt. McDowell said a supply of Ohio coal had been obtained.

Circleville coal yards were still empty Monday but operators are hoping for early relief from the famine. Piled up orders will be filled as fast as coal is received, they said.

Meanwhile, Circleville residents were hoping the warm weather will continue until coal supplies are replenished. The mild temperatures of the last few days eased the minds of many householders who have been carefully rationing the last few lumps of coal left in bins.

Merchants hailed with relief the lifting of the freight embargo. Many are certain that late shipments of Christmas merchandise will be received now that freight may move freely again.

Christmas gift-givers also are relieved because of the lifting of the restrictions on parcel mailing. Many, following their usual custom, had delayed mailing presents to friends and relatives and the restrictions on sizes of packages threatened to prevent sending of gifts.
